And I look for-ward to your questions. The prepared statement of Mr. Gimble can be found in the Ap-pendix on page 63. Mr. M H. Thank you very much, Mr. Gimble. C UGH I have been remiss over the last two or three witnesses to fail to note that we have, as I commented in my opening remarks, been joined by the distinguished ranking member of the International Relations Subcommittee, Mr. Payne. I would propose to my colleagues, because I have seen the testi-mony by Colonel Boyles and unless he is going to expand on that, which would be really unusual, he has a two-page militarily concise statement, perhaps we could do that, and then when we reconvene, Mr. Payne, if you have any opening remarks, I would be happy to yield to you. Does...
