Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from First Annual Report on the Injurious and Beneficial Insect of Massachusetts But few, however, suspect how enormous are the losses to crops in this country entailed by the attacks of the injurious species. In Europe, the subject of applied entomology has always attracted a great deal of attention. Most sumptuous works, elegant quartos prepared by naturalists known the world over, and published at government expense, together with smaller treatises, have frequently appeared; while the subject is taught in the numerous agricultural colleges and schools, especially of Germany. In the densely populated countries of Europe, the losses occasioned by injurious insects are most severely felt, though from many causes, such as the greater abundance of their insect parasites, and the far greater care taken by the people to exterminate their insect enemies, they have not proved so destructive as in our own land. In this connection I might quote from one of Dr. Asa Fitch's reports on the noxious insects of New York, where he says: I find that in our wheat-fields here, the midge formed 59 per cent. of all the insects on this grain the past summer; whilst in France, the preceding summer, only 7 per cent. of the insects on wheat were of this species. In France, the parasitic destroyers amounted to 85 per cent.; while in this country our parasites form only 10 per cent. As the writer has already remarked in the current volume of the American Naturalist, a true knowledge of practical entomology may well be said to be in its infancy, when, as is well known to agriculturists, the cultivation of wheat has almost been given up in...
