What if you went to bed one night with a few health problems and woke up the next day to a diagnosis of cancer? How would it change your life? Waking Up with CANCER is an autobiographical story about an average American woman: daughter, granddaughter, sister, cousin, friend, aunt, co-worker, employee, boss, neighbor, girlfriend, wife, mother, grandmother; whose perspective was drastically changed by a life-threatening diagnosis only one year after the same disease caused the sudden death of her only sister. It chronicles her tumultuous journey and the events that she believes led up to her illness. Constantly keeping the readers' attention, through both humor and heartache, the author gives an exciting, upfront, constantly moving, inside, candid view of her anything but normal childhood. From being the hyper-active product of an unwanted pregnancy to being adopted by unsettled parents, falling into a life of rebellion which led to redemption, growing up to disappointment, and finding hope. The broad spectrum of colorfully illustrated, intimate stories, interwoven with poetry and encouraging verses, gives this book the ability to reach deep into the hearts of men and women of all ages and lifestyles through topics they can relate to. Everyone at some time has been or will be affected by cancer, either directly or through a loved one. No one ever thinks it will happen to them, but statistics project that 1 in 3 people will eventually be diagnosed with some type of cancer. Not only will you want to purchase and keep a copy of this book for yourself, but also, for anyone you know that currently is, has previously, or knows someone who is battling cancer, because they desperately need...
