To be thoroughly appreciated, the scenery of the Hudson should be viewed in mid-winter as well as at more inviting seasons. When the ice shivers before the prow of the steamer, and the high and lonely hills on either side, are snow-clad; when the only hues that relieve the surrounding whiteness are the pale blue of the sky and the dark green of the firs and cedars, a scene is presented more striking to the imagination, from the reverse it affords to the same picture when alive with the freshness of spring, or mellowed by the glow of autumn. Analogous to such a contrast is that between the phases of Weir s destiny when he sailed up the noble river in a sloop, thirty years ago--exiled, by the misfortunes of his father, while yet a child, to the home of an ungenial relative, his young yet already troubled eyes bent on the cold features of that wintry landscape--and when he now looks from his romantic abode upon the wild umbrage of Cro nest, the honored teacher of West Point, and the artist of established fame. Burns immortalized a sentiment common to all men of genius when he declared independence to be the glorious privilege for which alone money was desirable. It is a trait of artist-life, evidenced in countless biographies, to chafe under a sense of obligation and contemn all interference unauthorized by sympathy. It is in this spirit that Hamlet enumerates,...
