Not illustrated. 1908 Excerpt: .it has become a city destined to be the brightest star among all its rivals in this part of the country. From the laying of its corner stone it has day by day and year by year experienced in its onward moves constant addition to and increase of all its volumes of business, commerce and industry. For proof of these facts let us compare its yearly banking accounts of the past few years as furnished by the Clearing House of this city as follows: 1903, $156,455,107.97; 1904, $157,256,725.96; 1905, $211,597,739.59; 1906, $288, 334, 386.35; 1907, $297,577,300.18. That the banking business of Salt Lake City is built on a solid and reliable foundation is evidenced by its many years of existence, the popular confidence gained and the increasing patronage of the public. It was through the conservative and careful management by the heads of these institutions during the by-gone years when our country was experiencing the general financial depression of the world and bank failures and assignments by large business houses were daily reported in the columns of the papers of our country, and anxiety for a general panic was-felt in every city and hamlet, that we escaped. Fear and consternation prevailed among people who by years of toil and saving had accumulated their means for future needs; they felt as if facing the peril of financial destruction. But calm and passive the banks of Salt Lake City stood the test and none of their doors had...
